

Myerstown Church of the Brethren Scriptural Message

9 For this reason, since the day we heard it, we have not ceased praying for you and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of God's[a] will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, 10 so that you may lead lives worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, as you bear fruit in every good work and as you grow in the knowledge of God. 11 May you be made strong with all the strength that comes from his glorious power, and may you be prepared to endure everything with patience, while joyfully 12 giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled[b] you[c] to share in the inheritance of the saints in the light. 13 He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, 14 in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.[d] The Supremacy of Christ 15 He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation; 16 for in[e] him all things in heaven and on earth were created, things visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers—all things have been created through him and for him. 17 He himself is before all things, and in[f] him all things hold together. 18 He is the head of the body, the church; he is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, so that he might come to have first place in everything. 19 For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, 20 and through him God was pleased to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, by making peace through the blood of his cross.

Myerstown Church of the Brethren

November 2020

Ministry through Faith, Vision, and Action

What's God Up To?

In 1970, a large number of Callery Pear trees were planted at the site of the original World Trade Center in New York City. Each spring their branches brought blossoms that brightened that world of concrete and asphalt. On 9/11/2001 the trees were buried beneath the rubble of the fallen twin towers.

In October of 2001 a clean-up worker found one tree smashed and burned between blocks of concrete. The tree was decapitated with almost all its branches broken off down to the trunk, which was charred, and its roots broken, but there was one living branch that had survived the trauma.

Most thought the tree was unsalvageable. Clean-up workers at Ground Zero persuaded a Parks Department employee to give the tree a chance so it was sent to a nursery in the Bronx. There nursery workers removed the dead, burned tissues, trimmed the roots and planted the tree in deep rich soil. The tree survived and the nursery workers gave it the name "Survivor."

In spring 2010 disaster struck the tree once more as a powerful storm with nearly 100 mph winds ripped it out of the ground.

Again, the workers tried to salvage the tree. They partially lifted the tree, packing the roots carefully in compost and mulch. For a long time, they gently sprayed it with water to minimize shock in the hope the tree would survive. A few weeks later they set "Survivor" completely upright.

In 2011, on the tenth anniversary of the 9/11 attack, "Survivor" was incorporated into the 9/11 memorial, planted near the footprint of the South Tower. The tree was intentionally planted so the traumatized side of the tree faced the public.

Some people complained that the tree spoiled the symmetry of the memorial, being a different species than the trees which had been incorporated into the memorial and still showing signs of the trauma of the attack. But on the tenth anniversary when the memorial site was opened to survivors and family members of those killed in the attack, many of them tied blue ribbons onto "Survivor's" branches. The Survivor Tree today serves as a reminder that, even out of the most difficult of circumstances, can come beauty, joy and life.

As we know all too well in 2020, what happened to the Survivor Tree can happen to us. Sometimes our world comes crashing down on us. Life gets messy and we wonder if we can survive.

We all want and maybe even expect a nice orderly, coherent life.

When life gets incoherent, when our world seems to disintegrate, we also can become uprooted; our coping mechanisms can go into hiding; we wonder if we're going to survive.

In his letter to the Colossian church Paul tells the believers that he is praying they might be "strengthened with all [God's] glorious power" so they will be prepared to "endure everything..." but not just endure. He prayed that they would have the power to endure with patience, and, in the midst of patient endurance, to "joyfully give thanks to the Father."

Is Paul totally out of touch here? In the midst of chaos and incoherence of life; in the midst of pain and suffering, to patiently endure it and to do so with joy and thanksgiving?

Julia Dray tells of an experience she had with her four-year-old daughter, Mary, while driving the beltway around Washington, DC. It was a typically unbearably hot and humid August afternoon in Washington. Julia was already late for an appointment, both she and Mary were tired and thirsty, and traffic had come to a complete standstill. There was no relief in sight, just a highway packed with cars stretching as far as she could see through the exhaust and haze.

Julia says she finally cried out in frustration (breaking her family's strict rule about using the Lord's name in vain), "Oh my God! How long is this going to go on? What am I going to do?"

Julia says she continued to rant and pound the steering wheel until she heard this quiet 4-year-old voice from the back seat.

"If you didn't sound so angry with him, mom, you could probably hear him better."

In the midst of a pandemic and increasing cases of COVID-19, in the midst of our frustration that Thanksgiving is going to look different this year (and Christmas too), maybe we need to take four-year-old Mary's advice to stop complaining and start listening, because we do have a choice in how we react when life crashes down on us and becomes chaotic and incoherent.

We can choose to whine and complain, to even blame God, or we can choose to turn to God and find the strength God gives to "endure with patience." And, if Jesus is truly who we say we believe he is, and we actually start to live as if he is who we say we believe he is, we can get to the point where we can even experience joy and can give thanks to the Father.

Today we might wonder where God is in all that is going on in the world and in our country right now: a pandemic, divisive politics, wildfires, etc.

What is God up to? As one of my favorite contemporary theologians, N.T. Wright, puts, "God is setting the world to rights.

What is God up to? Paul said it this way: "At the right time [God] will bring everything together under the authority of Christ – everything in heaven and on earth."

When our lives are shaped by what God has revealed to us about the future; when we live now in the strength and the power that is ours in Christ and, holding tightly to the promises that are ours in Christ, we are survivors.

This Thanksgiving, may you be strengthened with all God's glorious power so that you will have all the endurance and patience you need. May you be filled with joy, always thanking the Father. Amen.

Dennis

Pastor's Report

September 15, 2020 – October 20, 2020

As always, I am appreciative of those who have stepped up to staff the Children's Church program and to those who have served as worship leaders, provided music, and as technical assistants on sound and projection. I am pleased to see all of you respecting social distancing and wearing masks according to our re-opening guidelines. As we get into the winter months and the holiday season it is important that we don't get lax in this regard.

We had what both Jim Bauer and I felt was a successful Spiritual Renewal series. Thanks to brother Jim, those who provided music and those who attended. We averaged 40+ each evening including some children and some guests.

Fortunately, the number of persons in the congregation being hospitalized has been small. When possible, I am trying to connect on the phone. Please notify me when a family member or you become aware of a member of the church who is hospitalized so I can make contact with them.

The Revelation Bible study has been completed and on October 12 we started another study on the book of Hebrews. We will continue meeting up to Thanksgiving then take a break until after Christmas.

There has been some interest expressed in getting Sunday School and choir going again. These will both require more discussion on how we handle these activities.
